How we welcomed asylum seekers, refugees and detainees
Asylum Welcome welcomes asylum seekers, refugees and detainees who have fled persecution and danger in their own countries and seek refuge in Oxford and Oxfordshire.

Asylum Welcome’s broad range of practical, supportive services and activities are responsive to the needs of asylum seekers, refugees and detainees. These activities are carried out and sustained by a thriving community of volunteers, members, donors, staff and trustees, with an increasing involvement of refugee staff and volunteers to deliver services.
2015-16 saw an outpouring of public sympathy towards refugees. Asylum Welcome responded effectively to a huge increase in requests for information, offers of help, media enquiries and invitations to speak at events.

At the spontaneous ‘Refugees Welcome’ mass rally in early September in central Oxford, Asylum Welcome was well represented, and helped ensure that refugees were represented too. Director Kate Smart and former trustee and refugee Dr Qadeer addressed the crowd and scores of members and volunteers from Asylum Welcome participated.

Asylum Welcome saw increased public and political recognition of our expertise and credibility. We hosted a visit from leader of the Green Party Natalie Bennett and we attended a meeting in London with the Minister for Syrian Refugees.

We strengthened links with faith groups, including meeting members of the Oxford Synagogue and participating in a conference of churches at Ripon College, Cuddesdon.

Online, our social media followers rose substantially. With the help of Goodthinking Communications, we created a smart new website – it reflects our values, explains our services and recognises our volunteers and partners.

Media coverage of our work included the Oxford Mail, the Oxfordshire Guardian, BBC South, Radio Oxford, ITV Meridian, the Guardian newspaper and Sky News.

We continued our commitment to support refugees in raising their voices in public (for example we supported one refugee to be part of a film made by the charity Aspire) but we needed to exercise discretion in response to sustained press interest in the arrival of Syrian families, whose privacy we wished to protect.

The government asked local authorities to accept relocated Syrians from refugee camps. Asylum Welcome worked closely with Oxford City Council and with West Oxfordshire District Council to welcome these vulnerable families.

We marshalled volunteers and donations to kit out houses, we met families at the airport and using qualified interpreters we ran a programme of induction sessions, arranged visits to register with key agencies and gave English lessons.

We produced an information pack in English and Arabic. We have succeeded in our aim of introducing them to local amenities and communities, imparting a spirit of hopeful optimism about their new life.

There has been an increase in Syrians arriving spontaneously in Oxford. We helped some of these individuals to make arrangements for their young families to join them from Syria.

We have encouraged the growing Oxford Syrian community to develop group activities – ranging from a Facebook group to days out for the children.

We are encouraging other refugee communities to strengthen their networks: for example, we provided the local Sudanese Community group with a place to meet at weekends.
Increased demand

Throughout the year, we faced the challenge of more people approaching all of our services, combined with the impact of tougher policies and reductions in government and voluntary services. Despite increased pressures, we continued to provide an effective and caring response to the needs of asylum seekers, refugees and detainees.

Food service

We continue to accept generous donations of fresh food from the Oxford Food Bank and packaged food from a range of organisations and individuals – especially at harvest-time. Demand for food increased and, after careful thought, we ended the system of unlimited access to fresh food. It is now only available to those most in need. Weekly lunches continue to be well attended and provide a great spread of freshly cooked food, making use of surplus from the food deliveries as well as bought items. There has been an increase in the variety of dishes as the ‘lunch team’ has been joined by new volunteers and clients offering to take turns in cooking. Take-away boxes are popular and so wastage is at almost zero – it all goes!

Legal rights support

Many asylum seekers are confused by the legal system and need it explained, find it difficult to maintain regular contact with their lawyer, or they have no lawyer and need help to secure one. Our staff and volunteers help, drawing as needed on our Legal Rights Support Fund. The fund also pays for the translation of documentary evidence, administrative fees charged by the Home Office and the courts to release documents or submit applications to attend hearings and interviews.

We have seen an increase in the frequency that rejected asylum seekers are required to attend Eaton House Reporting Centre in London. We have paid thousands of pounds for bus fares to London to ensure that all appointments are kept. In a few cases we have also paid travel costs to enable family reunion, especially for those with relatives in refugee camps.

Key uses of the Legal Rights Support Fund:
- obtaining an expert opinion on a case
- submitting a fresh claim
- requesting an extension of Leave to Remain
- making an application for citizenship
- making an application for family reunion
- mounting a legal challenge to the refusal of welfare benefits.

Adult and family advice service

This service has dealt with a very wide range of issues, but homelessness has been the main focus. We produced an information pack for volunteer advisors on available homeless services, and a shorter leaflet for our homeless clients.

On average, three different issues were dealt with per client visit, but help in finding secure accommodation is key to resolving other issues: for example, improved health and the ability to take up educational and employment opportunities.

Our volunteers help destitute asylum seekers to make applications for Asylum Support payments and accommodation. Over the last year, Home Office criteria for applications has tightened significantly: most cases we dealt with were refused at the initial stage and we needed to submit further information, chase up applications and make hardship payments from our funds. Destitute Asylum Support applicants are now waiting a minimum of six weeks, often considerably longer.

For refugees granted Leave to Remain, getting independent accommodation in Oxford is very difficult as private housing rents are higher than housing benefit rates, and many landlords will not take housing benefit tenants. The local Housing Department will help to house people in the city if they have a local connection but people with Leave to Remain find it difficult to prove a local connection because of the long periods they have spent homeless, or the lack of an employment record. Some refugees have been offered housing away from Oxford, even though they are employed here.

Dealing with rejected asylum seekers with No Recourse to Public Funds is the most difficult part of our work. These people are often homeless and in some cases they suffer from various health conditions. 2015 saw the closure of Oxford’s only free hostel for refused asylum seekers: St Francis House. We relied on help from other day centres, OXSPOT, Crisis Skylight and the City of Sanctuary Host Oxford scheme to reduce their suffering, and are very grateful for their support.

Although in recent years Asylum Welcome has tightened its criteria for making hardship payments, this year saw a marked increase in well-founded requests. We would like to thank both an anonymous donor and the Red Cross for funding this. These payments have been absolutely essential in the prevention of suffering.

In response to increased demand, in early 2016 staff decided to extend opening hours and the service is now open from 9.30am to 4pm three days a week. There are plans to add a fourth day for both appointments and a telephone service. Asylum Welcome maintained its OISC registration to provide immigration advice (level one) during 2015-16 and has plans to increase the number of OISC registered advisers later in 2016.

“Asylum Welcome pointed me in the right direction and will assist me further if needed. They’re giving the best advice they could”
Education service

The team of education volunteers successfully referred asylum seekers and refugees to free or affordable courses. We continued to pay for bus passes to help them to attend these courses and, when available, clients were offered a recycled bicycle as a cheaper way to get to college. Clients were also encouraged to take advantage of IT support offered at Asylum Welcome by expert volunteer Jean-Luc.

Our team continued to provide one-to-one English lessons for those unable to access a mainstream course. There was an increase in requests for one-to-one teaching, partly due to government withdrawal of funding from free courses. In response to this unmet need, the team began to plan provision of in-house beginners’ classes for the first time, in partnership with the Ethnic Minority Business School (EMBS).

Detainee Support service

We made contact with as many detainees as possible. Volunteer visitors went to Campsfield House Immigration Removal Centre at least once a week to meet new detainees and assess their needs. They dealt with immediate concerns, making appointments for regular visiting, and bringing information back to the Asylum Welcome office where other volunteers could help to resolve bigger problems.

We worked hard on a variety of urgent concerns for detainees – dealing with practical issues like collecting their belongings, helping to translate documents, arranging for family visits, contacting doctors and lawyers, paying for travel to tribunals, paying for mobile phone charges and providing small amounts of ‘pocket money’ for those being removed from the UK.

Asylum Welcome’s Adult Service Co-ordinator has regularly attended the Campsfield managers’ stakeholder meetings, sharing our experiences and concerns in a thoughtful way. Topics raised include: treatment of detainees who claim to have been tortured, access to health services, the care of suicide risks, and access to legal advice.

We worked closely with the Welfare Team at Campsfield and are grateful that they took time to visit our offices for a discussion with our volunteers.

Policy advocacy

Asylum Welcome wrote papers setting out our main concerns about the Immigration Bill and proposed changes to Asylum Support, and we raised these concerns with local MPs. Pressure of other work prevented us from getting more involved in lobbying for fairer policies in the Immigration Bill.

After a series of very concerning reports about detention in 2014-15 the Home Office announced an independent inquiry conducted by Stephen Shaw. Asylum Welcome worked hard to produce a submission based on information from detainees at Campsfield with the result that our evidence was repeatedly cited in the ground-breaking Shaw Report on the treatment of vulnerable people in detention.

Youth service

Our weekly youth club continues to thrive, with an average attendance of 30 each week. Young people tell us that they enjoy being able to meet others and to be able to ask for help. Strong bonds have been formed between young people on the enjoyable summer outings, which include swimming, ice-skating, picnics and cinema trips.

We chair regular, well attended inter-agency meetings for professionals in Oxfordshire who work with unaccompanied asylum seeking children.

After turning 18, young people need our help to find somewhere to live, and to pursue legal claims to remain in the UK. Our Youth Co-ordinator attended the Immigration and Asylum Tribunal as a character witness for young refugees appealing against the Home Office’s decision to refuse to extend their Discretionary Leave. We are grateful to Host Oxford for providing emergency beds for destitute young people. We also supported young people with travel, seeking support for mental health, accessing education and getting employment. We continue to meet every newly arrived unaccompanied child in Oxfordshire through the Orientation Programme run by the Children’s Society. Many undergo age assessments and we support young people who maintain that they should have been assessed to be a child not an adult.

New projects

New aspects to our existing services were added in response to the needs of asylum seekers, refugees and detainees.

Volunteer medical visitor team
We now ensure that any detainee who tells us that they have a health problem sees a volunteer visitor who is a qualified doctor. This makes it easier for us to advocate with the Campsfield authorities to address health concerns and make appropriate referrals to specialist agencies such as Medical Justice, Freedom from Torture and The Helen Bamber Foundation.

Legal workshop for unaccompanied young people
For the first time we ran a legal workshop for young people at our youth club, thanks to solicitors from London-based Coram Children’s Legal Centre. They gave the young people a general understanding of the legal processes that affect them and they also gave some advice to individuals.

Football
We are working with Oxford MIND to provide football coaching and we enthusiastically accepted free tickets for Oxford United matches.

Breakfasts
When the number of homeless and destitute people using our services increased, we started to provide breakfasts, which have proved popular.

Conversation classes
Some volunteers set up weekly conversation classes to practice English – a relaxed and popular way to develop language proficiency.

Music workshops
Local music group The Confluence Collective started fortnightly workshops to improvise and share tunes from around the world. Beautiful music has been made!

Working with others

We could not achieve as much as we do without our many partners. Here are some examples:

Our ties with the Red Cross have been strengthened by their generous funding of our food bank and hardship payments, and through meetings to prepare for the Syrian resettlement. We regularly attended meetings facilitated by Medical Justice to review the treatment of detainees.

Asylum Welcome worked closely with the Children’s Society to maximise the benefit for young refugees. Some asylum seekers and refugees were referred for specialist counselling at Refugee Resource.

Oxford City Council drew upon Asylum Welcome’s experience and expertise to respond to the growing needs of refugees locally, and in planning for the Syrian resettlement programme. Asylum Welcome has had a central role in frequent co-ordination meetings throughout the year and has been part of the development of the council’s refugee action plan.

We have increased our participation in national networks such as the Refugee Children’s Consortium, the Destitution Forum and the Association of Visitors to Immigration Detainees. Asylum Welcome continues to be a member of Advice UK.
Our funders

Asylum Welcome is immensely fortunate to receive financial support from a wide range of sources, including Trusts and Foundations, local authorities, faith and community groups, university colleges and hundreds of generous individuals. In 2015-16 our income rose due to the high level of public concern for refugees and our involvement in the Syrian resettlement programme. This sustained us through an exceptional time and has enabled us to develop our services, increase the hours of some staff, grow our reserves and carry income forward to the year ahead.

We are thankful to have received important grants and donations from the following, some of whom have supported us for a long time and are also supporting us in the year ahead:

How our income is used

- Charitable expenditure: £217,372 (67%)
- Fundraising and building public support for refugees: £38,377 (12%)
- Governance: £13,007 (4%)
- Transfer to reserves: £57,604 (18%)

The transfer to reserves means that we have been able to grow our reserves from £58,000 in March 2015 to £116,000 in March 2016. This gives us more security in the year ahead.
